Outcomes and Results

- To provide shade and shelter for Christians to worship and learn.
- To conduct church activities including youth, Sunday school, and women's classes.
- Provide shelter and shade for over 1,300 students while they learn
- Worship training classes for Baptism.
- Worship training classes for Confirmation.
- Other leadership training classes.
- The Sudanese people will provide the materials and labor to build the sides and the labor to put the roof on, giving them ownership of the project.

The shelters bring people together to listen to the Gospel, receive the Sacraments, and a place where parochial school, workshops and seminars are held.

The worship centers stands to be the core of ELCS life and existence. The completion of church roofs on the centers is a vital need.

Most of the congregations and schools in Sudan are stationed under grass, thatched, locally made roofs, or out of mud and local materials that do not last for more than one rainfall season.

When it rains during morning hours, mixed with the hot heat, it is difficult for people to sit and learn or worship, let alone partake of the sacraments.

More than 4,000 people will benefit from the completion of the school and chapel roofs.

The roofs on these churches and schools will enable Evangelical Lutheran Church in Sudan (ELCS) to concentrate on planning for the church's further development and training in this particular area or region.

In support of completing roofs on chapels and schools in the country of Sudan and for the
